Families of the World

一、根据短文内容回答下列问题。

Where can you relax and be yourself? The answer is probably at home with your family. Family is important in our everyday life. It helps us shape our personality; it teaches us love and care.

Big Family VS Small Family

How many people are there in your family? Most families have a father, mother and child. But it can be different in other countries.

In many Asian countries, big families are common. Families usually have three or more generations living together. When parents are busy with work, grandparents help with the housework and take care of children.

While in the West, many people prefer a small family: only parents and children. During the daytime, working parents take their children to grandparents' house. And after work, they bring their children back home. Some families are even DINK (double income, no kids).

Family Home VS Old People's Home

Your parents look after you when you are young. Of course, you need to look after them when they are old. But is that the same in the East and West?

In China, it is a tradition for adult children to look after their old parents. During festivals or parents' birthdays, their children usually buy gifts or give them some money. When parents can't take care of themselves, children should look after them. But Western children don't always give money to their parents. Most of them choose to give gifts. When their parents can't look after themselves, children usually take them to an old people's home. So workers there can look after them.

1. In China, which is more common, the small families or the big families?
2. What will the working parents do during the daytime in the West?
3. What will most of children do on their parents' birthday in America?
4. Are the attitudes of families the same in the East and the West?
5. Do you need to look after your parents when they are old?
